Now With F.M.L.

Veterans Day is coming up Wednesday. It used to be Armistice Day, prior to World War II, Korea and Vietnam. But wars accrued until armistice dated the recognition in its World War I vintage. So many veterans, literally by tens of millions, now are civilians that "Veterans Day" obviously was a better designation.

Perhaps a telling interest in this "Veterans Day" is a remark President Nixon made about young men serving in Vietnam in this most complex of wars. To paraphrase, he said something like: "We are told our best young men are going to Canada in this Vietnam Conflict. But I say our best young men have gone to Vietnam."

What the President said was that more than the ability to reason, or rationalize, even at a superior intellectual level, is involved in educated manhood. Going to Vietnam may seem the biggest waste of a young man's time or his life, particularly to the bright, educated young man of the 1960's.

Reason tells him this war is senseless, all war is senseless and that this war is in his opinion, immoral. Some 20,000 so reasoned and are in Canada. But hundreds of thousands, including many of our brightest, have gone where they were ordered. The rationalized trip to Canada is still for the vast minority.

Bitterness is part of war. But it is part of peace too. When the Vietnam conflict is finally reduced to stalemate if not total peace, the expatriot in Canada, idealistically convinced of the rightness of his "cop out," will have refuge there, but no country. Ask refugees of any kind what it is like to be "without a country."

By the same token, ask a veteran of any of our wars in this 20th Century why he served.

"It was my duty," he might say, among variations on such a theme. But he intuitively knows he is better off with a country to defend and to return to, if he is lucky, even if its domestic problems and foreign involvements defy understanding.

He may not be able to participate in a dialogue on ideologies or win an argument on the rationale behind "peace moves" in this country, but he knows things are better here than in Vietnam. And so does the GI back 17 years from Korea or 25 years from the South Pacific or the European Theatre.

It is unfortunate men must die so each generation can appreciate this country is still better for most. Because we know by all these conflicts the horrors of war, each generation aspires to avoid, if not eliminate the gross slaughter each new war becomes. But there is some incomprehensible weakness in man to destroy even as he builds. It may be unconscious, but this dark element is there.

So it is not difficult to agree with President Nixon's comment on the quality of men and where they go. All the potential of our brightest and best must meet the same bittersweet tests of their whole generation to prove their prowess. The futility of war, yes, and the success, failure or boredom of peace. It is part of us to bite both sides of the apple.

Veterans of all these 20th Century conflicts, and non-veterans too, can think upon these things next Wednesday.

Veterans Mark Their Special Day

Veterans Day will be observed in Cameron Wednesday with a breakfast for veterans and their families in the American Legion Hut at Wilson-Ledbetter Park. Members of the Edwin Hardy American Legion Post No. 9 will prepare and serve the breakfast, from 6 a.m. until 9 a.m. and will be a "come and go" affair.

Wayne Weiser, Post Commander, said all veterans and their families are invited to attend. Tickets for the breakfast are available from Post members.

The local Post has been conducting a membership drive and now has over 70 members, Weiser said. Post 9 is one of the oldest in Texas.

The breakfast is about the only observance planned here for the special day, formerly called Armistice Day and designated by Congress as a legal holiday in 1938.

One of the oldest ceremonies connected with Armistice Day has been discontinued locally. In the decades following World War I, at 11 a.m. on November 11, the Nation observed one minute of silence, for prayer and remembrance of those killed in wars, and prayers for the safety of those in the armed services.

Most adults recall hearing fire whistles or church bells mark the hour when WW I armistice was signed, and pausing in their work, or at school, for the minute of silence.

In his Veterans Day proclamation, President Richard Nixon said, "Veterans Day, 1970, is an appropriate time for all Americans to reflect again on the meaning -- and the price -- of peace and freedom."

"For this is a time when we pause to honor those Americans who have been willing to risk life itself in the service of these ideals -- from Valley Forge to Vietnam."

"On this Veterans Day our thoughts are especially with those who have returned from the war in Vietnam and those who are still a part of it, with those who are held as prisoners and those who lie in hospitals, with those who are missing in action and those who died in combat."

"All of these men and women have proved themselves worthy inheritors of the great traditions which veterans of other wars established and maintained."

"It is my hope that on this day all Americans will offer special prayers for peace and for the safety of those who now serve in our Armed Forces. And let us all in silent tribute pay special honor to those who have paid the full price to keep our freedom alive."

City Operating Leaf Pick-Up

Autumn leaves, creating a "carry-off" problem for area residents will be picked up on a once a week schedule by city sanitation workers.

Jim Hale, City streets superintendent, said a truck will operate daily to pick up leaves in bags or other containers. "It will mean that we will cover the entire town at least once a week," Hale said.

In addition to the regular pick-up, the city vacuum truck will begin operating this week, picking up leaves that are piled at the curb. "The problem with the vacuum truck is that sticks and branches must be separated from the leaves," Hale said. He explained that they clog the vacuum. Also leaves piled at the curb might be caught by the wind and blown back on the yard.

Storks Collide At St. Edward

There was a hectic minute on the third floor at St. Edward Hospital Wednesday morning with the birth of two babies at exactly the same minute, 11:06 a.m. It was a first for the local hospital, and would be unusual in a major city hospital.

A 9 pound 2 ounce girl, Benita, was born to Mr. and Mrs. Lorenzo Hernandez of Thorndale, and at the same moment a 6 pound 4 ounce girl, Kymia Mashell was born to Mr. and Mrs. Donald Ray Freeman of Hempstead.

Pledges and cash donations stand at $7,800 for the $35,000 goal Cameron Industrial Foundation fund drive. Most contacts are still to be made, CIF drive chairman Bill Burns reported.

"We have had only a small percentage of contacts made at this point," Burns said. He said the drive was getting a slow start because of conflicting activities, but anticipated that most workers would be reporting in the next two weeks.

Eyewitness Recalls 1920 Disaster

By Lloyd Albertson

"It started about 2:30 in the morning I got up and looked out the window and could see the fire was already burning real good. There was a south wind blowing. Pretty good breeze, and it was making it spread in the cotton under the shed."

That was the way Hubert Briscoe described the start of one of the most spectacular fires in Cameron's history

-- the burning of the old Cameron Cotton Compress and several thousand bales of cotton fifty years ago.

It was reported in newspapers across the country at the time. And it was recalled just recently when the Times-Picayune of New Orleans, Louisiana, mentioned it among events of fifty years ago in its History in the Making column:

"Oct. 10, 1920 - . . . Seven thousand bales of cotton valued at $1 million were destroyed by fire at Cameron, Tex., believed part of a nationwide protest against cotton prices."

Hubert Briscoe -- many of his friends and acquaintances call him Bud -- was living near the cotton compress then just as he does today. Sitting on his front porch a few days ago he talked about the old 1920 fire, recalling details about it as if it had happened only yesterday.

"It started on the west side," he said. "There wasn't any warehouses over there then like there are now. Just sheds for the bales of cotton. They had sheet metal roofs, no sides, and the wooden floor was a foot or two off the ground. It was made of two by sixes and had cracks between them about this wide." He held his thumb and forefinger about two inches apart.

"A lot of cotton strings had fallen to the ground and strings were hanging down between them. So when the fire started to spread, all that stuff caught too, and that really did make it burn."

He added: "The Cameron fire department was out there, and the one from Rockdale, but they couldn't do anything. Didn't have enough water pressure for one thing."

"With the wind blowing out of the south the way it was, most of the sparks and pieces of burning wood and metal were carried to the north. Some of the sheets of metal from the roof were carried almost as far as the Catholic Church. About a quarter of a mile, I'd guess. And the fire lit up this whole end of town."

"Did the compress burn to the ground?" I asked him.

"Right down to the ground," he said. "The office was under the shed back then and it burned with all the records. The only thing that was saved was the tool shed, and it was too far away. Just the tool shed and two rivet hammers in there."

Yoemen Thump Elgin

Friday night the Cameron Yoemen in their final home game of the season downed the Elgin Wildcats 27-0.

The Yoemen scored on drives of 25, 35, 37, and 45 yards. All but one of the drives were set up by Wildcat miscues.

Yoes scoring came early as Edward Whitley intercepted an Elgin aerial in the play from scrimmage for the Cats.

Following a 10 yard return by Whitley the Yoemen were in business at the Cat's 25 yard line.

Five plays later Ernie De La Rosa scored with 9:36 left in the first period. Joe Lewis added the extra point and Yoe led early 7-0.

Elgin's only threat of the ball game followed an interception which set the Wildcats first and ten at the Yoe 21.

Four plays later a Wildcat field goal attempt was foiled by linebacker John Bailey as he rammed through and blocked it.

At the half the Yoemen led 7-0. A fumble recovery by Darrell Schnieder set the stage for Yoe's next tally. A drive that carried 35 yards in 4 plays sparked by a 31 yard pass play from quarterback Robert Brashear to end Mike Zajicek and capped by a 3 yard run by halfback Sam Knight brought the score 13-0. Lewis' attempted PAT was good as the Yoemen seemed to find momentum they had missed in earlier ball games.

Jerry Richardson ramled 7 yards for another Yoe TD. This came following a Brashear interception which carried 43 yards to the Elgin 37. The key play in this drive came on a jump pass from Brashear to newly appointed tight end Joe Lewis. This carried to the Elgin 17. There Sam Knight ramled to the 7 setting up Richardson's TD.

Joe Lewis again added the extra point and the Yoemen now led 21-0.

Cameron's final drive covered 45 yards. Sparked by a pass interference at the Elgin 9, the Yoemen pushed across their final touchdown of the night. Sam Knight did the honors on a 4 yard scamper. Lewis' kick was blocked. The final score was 27-0.

Yoe's offensive line consisting of Schnieder, Clint Schofield, Dale Schigut, Jack Raymond, Mike Zajicek, and Prentis McGoldrick, did an outstanding job opening big holes for Yoe back.

The defense caused several Cat turnovers consisting of four pass interceptions and two fumble recoveries. Brashear picked off two of the aerials with Whitley getting one and John Bailey one.

Schnieder and Knight are each credited with a fumble recovery.

Next week the Yoemen travel to Round Rock, their final district game of the season.

Georgetown wrapped up district play by downing Round Rock 32-0 Friday night thus clinching the district title.

Next Friday night will decide runner-up honors for either the Dragons or the Yoemen.

Freshmen Take Elgin In 20-14 Contest

The Yoe freshmen traveled to Elgin Thursday night and came home with another victory to bring their season record to 6-2, and district record to 3-1.

Final score was 20-12.

Yoe's first score came early in the first quarter when David Hollas carried from 22 yards out for the touchdown. George Whiteside ran the 2 extra points, which protected the freshman lead until the final period.

Elgin freshmen came back in the second quarter to score a touchdown but the try for extra points failed and the score was 8-6.

It was Cameron's turn on the scoreboard next, and they came through with a hard-won touchdown in the third period that moved from the 10, to the 4, and finally went over from the "11 foot" line. The PAT was no good and Cameron led 14-6.

The see-saw contest continued into the fourth quarter when Elgin's fleet-footed No. 44 swept around the Yoe defense and ran 43 yards for a touchdown. The freshmen foiled Elgin's try for extra points and the score was 14-12, Yoe's 2 points holding the lead.

The young Yoemen widened that lead to 20 on their next possession when they drove down the field and scored from 2 yards out. The PAT failed.

Elgin made a last-ditch try but they were thrown for a loss after they penetrated inside the Yoe 10. Yoe stopped that drive when they recovered a Wildcat fumble with seconds left in the game.

Yoe- Yoes Down Elgin, 7th 26-6; 8th 28-0

Cameron's Junior High Yoe Yoes defeated Elgin twice Thursday night on Yoe Field.

The seventh grade came out on top with a 26-6 win and the eighth grade kept the visitors from scoring while they racked up 28 points.

Robert Miller lead seventh grade scoring with a total of 14 points. These came on runs of 4 and 5 yards and a run for extra points.

Stanley Manners scored on a 7 yard run and Jafus White scampered 15 yards to round out Yoe Yoe scoring. Elgin's only score came on a 57 yard touchdown pass.

EIGHTH GRADE

The eighth grade picked up another district win with the aid of two pass interceptions.

Gary Trdy picked off an Elgin aerial and ramled 30 yards to score. Willie Bell was credited also with a 45 yard pass interception return.

Gene Kopriva scored on runs of 12 and 18 yards. Extra points were added by Bruce Zarosky along with Kopriva

More Than A Picture

The picture of the 1960 Yoe class reunion in The Herald of November 5 tells a story. More than it shows faces.

About 30 to 40 percent of those '60 YHS graduates still live in the Cameron area. This shows a "start of the stop" of student and farm emigration we speak of from time to time.

Not many classes of the last 15 years in any Milam area high school could show that percentage still living here. Reasons may be numerous, but it suggests that about the time of the 1960 census Central Texans began to realize the population losses which staggered most rural counties.

This was prior to Rockdale Alcoa's re-fring of one-third of its potlines and a few years before it began to plan for the additional potlines recently finished.

It was about the time industrial foundations made a lot of sense to some Cameronites, though it took a few

Statesmanship ...

Senator John Tower's endorsement of Cameron's Urban Renewal program is an act of statesmanship.

If further support is needed, beyond the obvious need for downtown Cameron improvement, Sen. Tower lends it.

Considerable statesmanship is already involved in bringing off such an imaginative program in a community which now so wants to modernize itself.

Survival and growth for small cities like Cameron require all the expertise and diplomacy its leaders and citizens can muster. One can years to bring one together. It was about the time expansion and economic integration of industry and what is now commonly known as agribusiness began to develop in this area. It was only a few years before Connally Tech was organized, to become the pioneering TSTI center for technical and industrial trade training.

All of these developments bear on the fact that some 40 percent of the class of 1960 are still around. Some may have gone into a family business or farming, but is more likely local expansion and industrial development made it possible.

The office jobs, the new housing, the brighter future, the better town and county are revealed in that 1960 picture. And as the '70's progress, others who now living in Houston or some other major Texas city may wish they can find a future in what is happening to the Milam area.

That class reunion picture says a lot doesn't it?

count communities by the hundreds in Texas and the thousands in this country which might have grown instead of faltering if a broad view of modern needs had been taken.

Survival is bi-partisan and hardly an issue. Future growth is going to be a result of sophisticated technology which requires statesmanship equal, if not ahead of the times.

It is indeed heartening to see the Senior Senator's insight into community needs here and finding those needs worthy of his support.

Election Results 'Fastest Ever'

Your favorite candidates may or may not have emerged victorious on November 3, but either way you knew the winner in a hurry.

For the first time in election coverage history, newsmen and the telephone company put it all together to come up with the fastest and most precise communications network ever.

"Election results information got a big boost from new data-speed equipment that prints at more than a thousand words a minute," said C. L. Carson, Manager for Southwestern Bell.

"That's ten times faster than ordinary printers." But this was only part of the story.

In addition to providing data-speed equipment, the telephone company worked for two years with members of the News Election Services (NES), composed of the Associated Press and UPI wire services and the ABC, CBS, and NBC networks, to coordinate a special nationwide communications network.

Employing thousands of people and computer hardware, this effort culminated November 3 as voting results were gathered, packaged and delivered into American homes within minutes of the time they were tallied.

Here's how it worked: As soon as the polls closed and votes were tallied, NES reporters located at each precinct relayed results by long distance telephone calls to the regional center located in Fort Worth, Texas. This center served five states.

The information was translated into computer language and sent by Data-Phone data service to the NES national computer located at Rockefeller Center in New York. Simultaneously the same data branched out by private line teletypewriter to the various state headquarters and the NES affiliate members in the respective states.

The millions of pieces of information fed into the national computer in New York were pumped out and carried continuously to the news media by private line data services. The entire process -- from precinct to on-the-air broadcast -- averaged about 10 minutes.

"It was a massive job to handle one million telephone calls from 200,000 NES reporters in all 50 states, to instruct telephone operators from all over the country in special billing arrangements, and to install a battery of telephones and teletypewriters in the regional office," Carson said.

Equipment installation continued right up to election day, and dismantling started the day after. "Now that it's all over," he said, "we're starting to plan for 1972."

Plans For Poage Center To Highlight Tribute At TSTI

WACO

Plans for the proposed W. R. Poage Land Technology Center for the Texas State Technical Institute will be reviewed during an all-day tribute to the U. S. Congressman, Monday, December 7.

The new facility which will bear the Congressman's name will be constructed on the northern section of the James Connally Campus of TSTI.

The day's activities get underway on the morning of December 7 with an open house of all facilities at the Texas State Technical Institute.

In the afternoon a reception for the Congressman will be held in the Student Center on the James Connally Campus.

The day's events will be climaxed Monday evening at 6:30 with a banquet at Ridgewood Country Club which will be attended by more than 300 persons from across the nation who wish to show their appreciation for Poage's 34 years service in the Congress.

Dr. Roy Dugger, president of TSTI, said the theme for the evening will be "Beat Swords Into Plowshares." A conceptual model of the proposed center will be on display during the day at the TSTI campus and in the evening at Ridgewood Country Club.

Plans for the facility are in the preliminary stages. It is expected to be located on a 15-acre plot near the north gate to the campus.

U.S. Main Nickel User

The United States continues to be the main consumer of the metal nickel. During 1969, the country used some 310 million pounds of a free world total of 820 million pounds in fabricating consumer and industrial products.

Deepsea divers, operating hundreds of miles from the nearest sea, were important to the success of a mining operation in northern Manitoba. The divers plunged into 60 feet of swampy water to help sink a mine shaft for International Nickel.

MEET A FRIEND OF OURS

The American farmer. Today, he's one of fewer than three million... yet part of America's largest industry, agriculture.

He sets our tables bounteously and at a smaller proportion of take-home pay than ever before, anywhere.

Squeezed between soaring operating costs and a marginal return for his products, his efficiency and productivity are miraculous... and possible, in large part, through low-cost electric power, available when and where he needs it.

Supplying that power across America's countryside is the job of rural electric systems, such as ours. We're proud to help our friend, the American farmer... proud to be a vital part of one of our most vital industries... agriculture.

Industrial Conference To Discuss Financing

Invitations have been sent to about 700 Central Texas business leaders for the seventh annual Central Texas Industrial Development Conference set for Nov. 19 in Waco.

The conference is sponsored jointly by the Central Texas Industrial Development Council, the Texas Industrial Commission and the Hankamer School of Business at Baylor University.

State Sen. Murray Watson Jr., in announcing the conference, said it will cover financing of industrial prospects, "since this appears to be the number one problem in industrial development at this time."

One panel discussion will feature such topics as the role of commercial banks, mortgage banks, investor builders and insurance companies in industrial financing.

Another will include discussions on the Small Business Administration, Economic Development Administration, industrial foundations and industrial revenue bonds.

Jim Harwell, executive director of Texas Industrial Commission, will review the conference and wrap it up after participation by industrial experts from both the public and private sector in the series of panel discussions.

In exactly two seconds, Mother will have to slam on the brakes.

When she does, you can just imagine what's going to happen to her innocent bystander here. And that picture is not so cute.

That's why our safety experts urge every mother to make sure her children never stand up in the car. To make sure they're always seated and strapped in safely.

But how can you tie a child down?

Three ways.

From infancy to toddler age, in a carry-crib. Secured with the car's seat belt. From toddler age to about 4 or 5, in a special car seat. Secured with the seat belt. From then on, until a seat belt fits your child snugly, with a pillow or two underneath the child. To fill the gap.

How come your new car dealers are so concerned about your child? It stands to reason. We have kids of our own.

And we know that children don't come equipped with built-in safety features.

He paused and then said slowly: "But I guess maybe it could have been worse. . . You see," he explained, "there was a tank car of gasoline on the track near the compress, and it looked like any minute a spark or something would set it on fire. But when the Santa Fe passenger train came in, the engineer unhooked and went in there with the engine and hooked onto it and pulled it out. If that tank of gasoline had started to burn and had exploded. . . ." He gestured with one hand expressively.

"What do you think caused the fire to get started?" I asked, remembering the Times - Playcune item.

"Nobody was sure," Briscoe said. "But, you see, when a bale comes out of the press, a lot of times it's pretty hot. And sometimes it is on fire. But it burns on the inside at first. . . Maybe two or three bales of cotton that was on fire got stacked in the shed. And when the air hit them they began to burn. That's what we thought at the time, anyway."

So apparently the fire here was likely just a coincidence instead of part of a protest movement over the country as the Times - Playcune item suggested. Old records, however, show that cotton prices, after rising for a year or two following World War I, dropped sharply in 1920, causing a good deal of protest and agitation.

"I'd been working at the compress about two years when the fire happened," Briscoe reminisced. "Started in 1918 when I was pretty young. I was working as a hook boy - - you know, moving cotton bales around and doing other things."

"Didn't all of the cotton burn," he recalled. "There was a lot of bales of cotton on the ground - - no room for it in the sheds. That on the ground didn't burn - - That was a big cotton year, I remember. There was 65,000 bales made in Milam County that year. That's all they raised back then - - cotton and corn. Mostly cotton."

Trimmer in Frame-up

A trimmer is not always a barber or gardener. In carpentry, it's a beam or joist, to which a header is nailed in framing a stairway or chimney opening.

Nevada is mostly desert, but its 20 mountain ranges contain more than a half billion board feet of sawlog-size timber, enough to replace all homes in the state. Trees are mostly ponderosa pine and white fir.

Consider wood for that garden retaining wall, if warm good looks are wanted. Any western wood, if pressure treated, is fine.

School News

Yoe High School students who expect to complete their secondary school requirements and to enter college in 1972 should register now to participate in the 1971-72 National Merit Scholarship Program, Principal John Chubb announced today.

The first step for all students who wish to enter the nationwide Merit Scholarship competition is to take the National Merit Scholarship Qualifying Test (NMQST). The test will be given only once during this school year. Our school is scheduled to give the NMQST at 9 a.m., Tuesday, February 16, 1971.

Taking the NMQST is also the first step for students who wish to participate in other scholarship programs administered by the National Merit Scholarship Corporation (NMSC). These programs include the National Achievement Scholarship Program for Outstanding Negro Students and Special Scholarship programs administered by NMSC for business and industrial firms.

NMQST participants pay a $1.25 test fee.

When his NMQST scores are reported, each participating student will receive a handbook to help him understand his scores and compare his test performance with that of other high school students across the country. The handbook, which contains information about making college choices and financing a college education, is furnished as a part of reporting the student's test results. Other interpretive materials are sent to the school.

The highest-scoring students in each state will be named Merit Program Semi-finalists, and if they advance to Finalist standing, they will be eligible for Merit Scholarship consideration.

In addition to the National Merit Scholarships financed by NMSC, more than 450 business corporations, foundations, colleges, professional associations, unions, trusts, other organizations, and individuals offer scholarships through the Merit Program.

About 24,800 students have won Merit Scholarships in the fifteen programs to date. Approximately 2975 new winners of Merit Scholarships entered college this fall.

Sales Tax Sharing Would Help Schools, Says Kubiak

Texas Association of School Boards and school administrators have endorsed a bill drafted by Rep. Dan Kubiak to use one percent of the sales tax money to be returned to the local schools on a per-pupil basis.

In his weekly newsletter, Rep. Kubiak said if the bill is passed, it will provide some relief to local school districts "who are already at the taxing limit trying to raise additional needed revenue. If you support this idea and feel that it is essential, I will appreciate your supporting this measure in your local areas."

Commenting on the problem of state expenditures, Rep. Kubiak noted that Nebraska cut taxes this year by nearly 25 percent, and said "we are corresponding with them to find ways to curb our own expenditures in the State of Texas."

NO. 1 PROBLEM
Rep. Kubiak cited figures from a survey presented to his office showing statistics on alcoholics. "There are more than 400,000 alcoholics in Texas, and at least 50 percent of all traffic fatalities and divorce cases involve the use of alcohol," he noted.

"The current public outcry and concern over the use of marijuana and dangerous drugs is certainly justified because of the severity of the problem in Texas," Kubiak said, "but I am firmly convinced, however, that the excessive use of alcohol is still the number one drug problem in our nation and in our state."

SMALL HOSPITALS
Legislation now in Congress will give relief to small hospitals who are faced with the HEW ruling that all hospitals must have a registered nurse on duty 24 hours a day, Rep. Kubiak said.

Some 140 small hospitals in Texas have been forced to close because of federal regulations. "There's no quarrel with the requirement," Kubiak said, "if we could find the nurses. The bill will allow HEW to waive the rule on a year-by-year basis if the hospital shows evidence of good faith in searching for personnel."

Chile Buys Polled Herefords

The world market for U. S. beef cattle look a large step toward the brighter side for this week with the announcement of the sale of 2,300 head of Polled Hereford cattle to be shipped by air to the Magallanes Province on the southern tip of Chile.

The purchase, amounting to more than a million dollars, was made by the Chilean Ministry of Agriculture, and the cattle will be a part of a continuing program for the development of a beef cattle industry in the south of Chile.

Under the same program, more than 10,000 U. S. Polled Herefords have been sold to Chile in the past three years.

The American Polled Hereford Association has been named to handle procurement of the cattle, and representatives of the APHA are now traveling in several states with Chile officials locating and purchasing commercial Polled Hereford heifers.

Weiner Ways

Weiners are a handy meat to have on hand. Kept in the freezer until needed, they thaw quickly and cook in minutes. Steamed in water or beer or just browned, they are a delicious and waste-free meat item. Score frankfurters and pose them atop hot sauerkraut for a hearty meal. Or for a winner, spoon canned chili over steamed weiners on fresh buns.

Now With F.M.L.

Veterans Day is coming up Wednesday. It used to be Armistice Day, prior to World War II, Korea and Vietnam. But wars accrued until armistice dated the recognition in its World War I vintage. So many veterans, literally by tens of millions, now are civilians that "Veterans Day" obviously was a better designation.

Perhaps a telling interest in this "Veterans Day" is a remark President Nixon made about young men serving in Vietnam in this most complex of wars. To paraphrase, he said something like: "We are told our best young men are going to Canada in this Vietnam Conflict. But I say our best young men have gone to Vietnam."

What the President said was that more than the ability to reason, or rationalize, even at a superior intellectual level, is involved in educated manhood. Going to Vietnam may seem the biggest waste of a young man's time or his life, particularly to the bright, educated young man of the 1960's.

Reason tells him this war is senseless, all war is senseless and that this war is in his opinion, immoral. Some 20,000 so reasoned and are in Canada. But hundreds of thousands, including many of our brightest, have gone where they were ordered. The rationalized trip to Canada is still for the vast minority.

Bitterness is part of war. But it is part of peace too. When the Vietnam conflict is finally reduced to stalemate if not total peace, the expatriate in Canada, ideologically convinced of the rightness of his "cop out", will have refuge there, but no country. Ask refugees of any kind what it is like to be "without a country."

By the same token, ask a veteran of any of our wars in this 20th Century why, why he served.

"It was my duty," he might say, among variations on such a theme. But he intuitively knows he is better off with a country to defend and to return to, if he is lucky, even if its domestic problems and foreign involvements defy understanding.

He may not be able to participate in a dialogue on ideologies or win an argument on the rationale behind "peace moves" in this country, but he knows things are better here than in Vietnam. And so does the GI back 17 years from Korea or 25 years from the South Pacific or the European Theatre.

It is unfortunate men must die so each generation can appreciate this country is still better for most. Because we know by all these conflicts the horrors of war, each generation aspires to avoid, if not eliminate the gross slaughter each new war becomes. But there is some incomprehensible weakness in man to destroy even as he builds. It may be unconscious, but this dark element is there.

So it is not difficult to agree with President Nixon's comment on the quality of men and where they go. All the potential of our brightest and best must meet the same bitter-sweet tests of their whole generation to prove their prowess. The futility of war, yes, and the success, failure or boredom of peace. It is part of us to bite both sides of the apple.

Veterans of all these 20th Century conflicts, and non-veterans too, can think upon these things next Wednesday.

Veterans Mark Their Special Day

Veteran's Day will be observed in Cameron Wednesday with a breakfast for veterans and their families in the American Legion Hut at Wilson-Ledbetter Park. Members of the Edwin Hardy American Legion Post No. 9 will prepare and serve the breakfast, from 6 a.m. until 9 a.m. and will be a "come and go" affair.

Wayne Weiser, Post Commander, said all veterans and their families are invited to attend. Tickets for the breakfast are available from Post members.

The local Post has been conducting a membership drive and now has over 70 members, Weiser said. Post 9 is one of the oldest in Texas.

The breakfast is about the only observance planned here for the special day, formerly called Armistice Day and designated by Congress as a legal holiday in 1938.

One of the oldest ceremonies connected with Armistice Day has been discontinued locally. In the decades following World War I, at 11 a.m. on November 11, the Nation observed one minute of silence, for prayer and remembrance of those killed in wars, and prayers for the safety of those in the armed services.

Most adults recall hearing fire whistles or church bells mark the hour when WW I armistice was signed, and pausing in their work, or at school, for the minute of silence.

In his Veterans Day proclamation, President Richard Nixon said, "Veterans Day, 1970, is an appropriate time for all Americans to reflect again on the meaning -- and the price -- of peace and freedom."

"For this is a time when we pause to honor those Americans who have been willing to risk life itself in the service of these ideals -- from Valley Forge to Vietnam."

"On this Veterans Day our thoughts are especially with those who have returned from the war in Vietnam and those who are still a part of it, with those who are held as prisoners and those who lie in hospitals, with those who are missing in action and those who died in combat."

"All of these men and women have proved themselves worthy inheritors of the great traditions which veterans of other wars established and maintained."

"It is my hope that on this day all Americans will offer special prayers for peace and for the safety of those who now serve in our Armed Forces. And let us all in silent tribute pay special honor to those who have paid the full price to keep our freedom alive."

City Operating Leaf Pick-Up

Autumn leaves, creating a "carry-off" problem for area residents will be picked up on a once a week schedule by city sanitation workers.

Jim Hale, City streets superintendent, said a truck will operate daily to pick up leaves in bags or other containers. "It will mean that we will cover the entire town at least once a week," Hale said.

In addition to the regular pick-up, the city vacuum truck will begin operating this week, picking up leaves that are piled at the curb. "The problem with the vacuum truck is that sticks and branches must be separated from the leaves," Hale said. He explained that they clog the vacuum. Also leaves piled at the curb might be caught by the wind and blown back on the yard.

Storks Collide At St. Edward

There was a hectic minute on the third floor at St. Edward Hospital Wednesday morning with the birth of two babies at exactly the same minute, 11:06 a.m. It was a first for the local hospital, and would be unusual in a major city hospital.

A 9 pound 2 ounce girl, Benita, was born to Mr. and Mrs. Lorenzo Hernandez of Thorndale, and at the same moment a 6 pound 4 ounce girl, Kymia Mashell was born to Mr. and Mrs. Donald Ray Freeman of Hempstead.

CIF Pledges Total $7,800

Pledges and cash donations stand at $7,800 for the $35,000 goal Cameron Industrial Foundation fund drive. Most contacts are still to be made, CIF drive chairman Bill Burns reported.

"We have had only a small percentage of contacts made at this point," Burns said. He said the drive was getting a slow start because of conflicting activities, but anticipated that most workers would be reporting in the next two weeks.

Eyewitness Recalls 1920 Disaster

By Lloyd Albertson

"It started about 2:30 in the morning. I got up and looked out the window and could see the fire was already burning real good. There was a south wind blowing. Pretty good breeze, and it was making it spread in the cotton under the shed."

That was the way Hubert Briscoe described the start of one of the most spectacular fires in Cameron's history

-- the burning of the old Cameron Cotton Compress and several thousand bales of cotton fifty years ago.

It was reported in newspapers across the country at the time. And it was recalled just recently when the Times-Picayune of New Orleans, Louisiana, mentioned it among events of fifty years ago in its "History in the Making" column: "Oct. 10, 1920 - . . . Seven thousand bales of cotton valued at $1 million were destroyed by fire at Cameron, Tex., believed part of a nationwide protest against cotton prices."

Hubert Briscoe - many of his friends and acquaintances call him Bud - was living near the cotton compress then just as he does today. Sitting on his front porch a few days ago he talked about the old 1920 fire, recalling details about it as if it had happened only yesterday.

"It started on the west side," he said. "There wasn't any warehouses over there then like there are now. Just sheds for the bales of cotton. They had sheet metal roofs, no sides, and the wooden floor was a foot or two off the ground. It was made of two by sixes and had cracks between them about this wide." He held his thumb and forefinger about two inches apart.

"A lot of cotton strings had fallen to the ground and strings were hanging down between them. So when the fire started to spread, all that stuff caught too, and that really did make it burn."

He added: "The Cameron fire department was out there, and the one from Rockdale, but they couldn't do anything. Didn't have enough water pressure for one thing."

"With the wind blowing out of the south the way it was, most of the sparks and pieces of burning wood and metal were carried to the north. Some of the sheets of metal from the roof were carried almost as far as the Catholic Church. About a quarter of a mile, I'd guess. . . . And the fire lit up this whole end of town."

"Did the compress burn to the ground?" I asked him.

"Right down to the ground," he said. "The office was under the shed back then and it burned with all the records. The only thing that was saved was the tool shed, and it was too far away. Just the tool shed and two rivet hammers in there."

Yoemen Thump Elgin

Friday night the Cameron Yoemen in their final home game of the season downed the Elgin Wildcats 27-0.

The Yoemen scored on drives of 25, 35, 37, and 45 yards. All but one of the drives were set up by Wildcat miscues.

Yoes scoring came early as Edward Whitley intercepted an Elgin aerial in the play from scrimmage for the Cats.

Following a 10 yard return by Whitley the Yoemen were in business at the Cat's 25 yard line.

Five plays later Ernie De La Rosa scored with 9:36 left in the first period. Joe Lewis added the extra point and Yoe led early 7-0.

Elgin's only threat of the ball game followed an interception which set the Wildcats first and ten at the Yoe 21.

Four plays later a Wildcat field goal attempt was fumbled by linebacker John Bailey as he rambled through and blocked it.

At the half the Yoemen led 7-0.

A fumble recovery by Darrell Schneider set the stage for Yoe's next tally. A drive that carried 35 yards in 4 plays sparked by a 31 yard pass play from quarterback Robert Brashear to end Mike Zajick and capped by a 3 yard run by halfback Sam Knight brought the score 13-0.

Lewis' attempted PAT was good as the Yoemen seemed to find momentum they had missed in earlier ball games.

Jerry Richardson rambled 7 yards for another Yoe TD. This came following a Brashear interception which carried 43 yards to the Elgin 37. The key play in this drive came on a jump pass from Brashear to newly appointed tight end Joe Lewis. This carried to the Elgin 17. There Sam Knight rambled to the 7 setting up Richardson's TD.

Joe Lewis again added the extra point and the Yoemen now led 21-0.

Cameron's final drive covered 45 yards. Sparked by a pass interference at the Elgin 9, the Yoemen pushed across their final touchdown of the night. Sam Knight did the honors on a 4 yard scamper. Lewis' kick was blocked. The final score was 27-0.

Yoe's offensive line consisting of Schneider, Clint Schofield, Dale Schlug, Jack Raymond, Mike Zajick, and Prentiss McGoldrick, did an outstanding job opening big holes for Yoe backs.

The defense caused several Cat turnovers consisting of four pass interceptions and two fumble recoveries. Brashear picked off two of the aerials with Whitley getting one and John Bailey one.

Schneider and Knight are each credited with a fumble recovery.

Next week the Yoemen travel to Round Rock, their final district game of the season.

Georgetown wrapped up district play by downing Round Rock 32-0 Friday night thus clinching the district title.

Next Friday night will decide runner-up honors for either the Dragons or the Yoemen.

Freshmen Take Elgin In 20-14 Contest

The Yoe freshmen traveled to Elgin Thursday night and came home with another victory to bring their season record to 6-2, and district record to 3-1.

Final score was 20-12.

Yoe's first score came early in the first quarter when David Hollas carried from 22 yards out for the touchdown. George Whiteside ran the 2 extra points, which protected the freshman lead until the final period.

Elgin freshmen came back in the second quarter to score a touchdown but the try for extra points failed and the score was 8-6.

It was Cameron's turn on the scoreboard next, and they came through with a hard-won touchdown in the third period that moved from the 10, to the 4, and finally went over from the "1 foot" line. The PAT was no good and Cameron led 14-6.

The see-saw contest continued into the fourth quarter when Elgin's fleet-footed No. 44 swept around the Yoe defense and ran 43 yards for a touchdown. The freshmen foiled Elgin's try for extra points and the score was 14-12. Yoe's 2 points holding the lead.

The young Yoemen widened that lead to 20 in their next possession when they drove down the field and scored from 2 yards out. The PAT failed.

Elgin made a last-ditch try but they were thrown for a loss after they penetrated inside the Yoe 10. Yoe stopped that drive when they recovered a Wildcat fumble with seconds left in the game.

Yoe- Yoes Down Elgin, 7th 26-6; 8th 28-0

Cameron's Junior High Yoe Yoes defeated Elgin twice Thursday night on Yoe Field.

The seventh grade came out on top with a 26-6 win and the eighth grade kept the visitors from scoring while they racked up 28 points.

Robert Miller lead seventh grade scoring with a total of 14 points. These came on runs of 4 and 5 yards and a run for extra points.

Stanley Manners scored on a 7 yard run and Jusuf White scampered 15 yards to round out Yoe Yoe scoring.

Elgin's only score came on a 57 yard touchdown pass.

EIGHTH GRADE

The eighth grade picked up another district win with the aid of two pass interceptions.

Gary Trdy picked off an Elgin aerial and rambled 30 yards to score. Willie Bell was credited also with a 45 yard pass interception return.

Gene Kopriya scored on runs of 12 and 18 yards. Extra points were added by Bruce Zarosky along with Kopriya

Bell Co. Claims LaSalle

TEMPLE
The Central Texas Chapter of the Texas Explorers Club will mark a spot at Youngsfort, Bell County, as the final resting place of Rene Robert Cavalier, Sieur de La Salle, early day explorer who established France's claim to what later became the Louisiana Purchase. LaSalle's murder and burial had previously been placed in East Texas, but the exact location was never agreed on. Bell County Explorers Club bases their claim on reports of an eyewitness recorded in Spanish government records.

More Than A Picture

The picture of the 1960 Yoe class reunion in The Herald of November 5 tells a story. More than it shows faces.

About 30 to 40 percent of those '60 YHS graduates still live in the Cameron area. This shows a "start of the stop" of student and farm emigration we speak of from time to time.

Not many classes of the last 15 years in any Milam area high school could show that percentage still living here. Reasons may be numerous, but it suggests that about the time of the 1960 census Central Texans began to realize the population losses which staggered most rural counties.

This was prior to Rockdale Alcoa's refining of one-third of its potlines and a few years before it began to plan for the additional potlines recently finished.

It was about the time industrial foundations made a lot of sense to some Cameronites, though it took a few years to bring one together. It was about the time expansion and economic integration of industry and what is now commonly known as agribusiness began to develop in this area. It was only a few years before Connally Tech was organized, to become the pioneering TSTI center for technical and industrial trade training.

All of these developments bear on the fact that some 40 percent of the class of 1960 are still around. Some may have gone into a family business or farming, but is more likely local expansion and industrial development made it possible.

The office jobs, the new housing, the brighter future, the better town and county are revealed in that 1960 picture. And as the '70's progress, others who now living in Houston or some other major Texas city may wish they can find a future in what is happening to the Milam area.

That class reunion picture says a lot doesn't it?

Statesmanship ...

Senator John Tower's endorsement of Cameron's Urban Renewal program is an act of statesmanship.

If further support is needed, beyond the obvious need for downtown Cameron improvement, Sen. Tower lends it.

Considerable statesmanship is already involved in bringing off such an imaginative program in a community which now so wants to modernize itself.

Survival and growth for small cities like Cameron require all the expertise and diplomacy its leaders and citizens can muster. One can count communities by the hundreds in Texas and the thousands in this country which might have grown instead of faltering if a broad view of modern needs had been taken.

Survival is bi-partisan and hardly an issue. Future growth is going to be a result of sophisticated technology which requires statesmanship equal, if not ahead of the times.

It is indeed heartening to see the Senior Senator's insight into community needs here and finding those needs worthy of his support.

Election Results 'Fastest Ever'

Your favorite candidates may or may not have emerged victorious on November 3, but either way you knew the winner in a hurry.

For the first time in election coverage history, newsmen and the telephone company put it all together to come up with the fastest and most precise communications network ever.

"Election results information got a big boost from new data-speed equipment that prints at more than a thousand words a minute," said C. L. Carson, Manager for Southwestern Bell.

"That's ten times faster than ordinary printers." But this was only part of the story.

In addition to providing data-speed equipment, the telephone company worked for two years with members of the News Election Services (NES), composed of the Associated Press and UPI wire services and the ABC, CBS, and NBC networks, to coordinate a special nationwide communications network.

Employing thousands of people and computer hardware, this effort culminated November 3 as voting results were gathered, packaged and delivered into American homes within minutes of the time they were tallied.

Here's how it worked: As soon as the polls closed and votes were tallied, NES reporters located at each precinct relayed results by long distance telephone calls to the regional center located in Fort Worth, Texas. This center served five states.

The information was translated into computer language and sent by Data-Phone data service to the NES national computer located at Rockefeller Center in New York. Simultaneously the same data branched out by private line teletypewriter to the various state headquarters and the NES affiliate members in the respective states.

The millions of pieces of information fed into the national computer in New York were pumped out and carried continuously to the news media by private line data services. The entire process -- from precinct to on-the-air broadcast -- averaged about 10 minutes.

"It was a massive job to handle one million telephone calls from 200,000 NES reporters in all 50 states, to instruct telephone operators from all over the country in special billing arrangements, and to install a battery of telephones and teletypewriters in the regional office," Carson said.

Equipment installation continued right up to election day, and dismantling started the day after. "Now that it's all over," he said, "we're starting to plan for 1972."

Plans For Poage Center To Highlight Tribute At TSTI

WACO

Plans for the proposed W. R. Poage Land Technology Center for the Texas State Technical Institute will be reviewed during an all-day tribute to the U. S. Congressman, Monday, December 7.

The new facility which will bear the Congressman's name will be constructed on the northern section of the James Connally Campus of TSTI.

The day's activities get underway on the morning of December 7 with an open house of all facilities at the Texas State Technical Institute.

In the afternoon a reception for the Congressman will be held in the Student Center on the James Connally Campus.

The day's events will be climaxed Monday evening at 6:30 with a banquet at Ridgewood Country Club which will be attended by more than 300 persons from across the nation who wish to show their appreciation for Poage's 34 years service in the Congress.

Dr. Roy Dugger, president of TSTI, said the theme for the evening will be "Beat Swords into Plowshares." A conceptual model of the proposed center will be on display during the day at the TSTI campus and in the evening at Ridgewood Country Club.

Plans for the facility are in the preliminary stages. It is expected to be located on a 15-acre plot near the north gate to the campus.

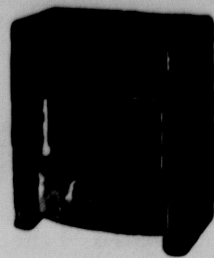

U.S. Main Nickel User

The United States continues to be the main consumer of the metal nickel. During 1969, the country used some 310 million pounds of a free world total of 820 million pounds in fabricating consumer and industrial products.

Diverse Divers

Deepsea divers, operating hundreds of miles from the nearest sea, were important to the success of a mining operation in northern Manitoba. The divers plunged into 60 feet of swampy water to help sink a mine shaft for International Nickel.

Dear Frank:
Thank you for your very fair and professional coverage of the recent political races. You were most objective in your reporting of the activities of all candidates and parties.

I, for one, am very grateful for the job you and the other members of your profession continually do.

Best personal regards.

Sincerely,
Ben Barnes

MEET A FRIEND OF OURS

The American farmer. Today, he's one of fewer than three million... yet part of America's largest industry, agriculture.

He sets our tables bounteously and at a smaller proportion of take-home pay than ever before, anywhere.

Squeezed between soaring operating costs and a marginal return for his products, his efficiency and productivity are miraculous... and possible, in large part, through low-cost electric power, available when and where he needs it.

Supplying that power across America's countryside is the job of rural electric systems, such as ours. We're proud to help our friend, the American farmer... proud to be a vital part of one of our most vital industries... agriculture.

Industrial Conference To Discuss Financing

Invitations have been sent to about 700 Central Texas business leaders for the seventh annual Central Texas Industrial Development Conference set for Nov. 19 in Waco.

The conference is sponsored jointly by the Central Texas Industrial Development Council, the Texas Industrial Commission and the Hankamer School of Business at Baylor University.

State Sen. Murray Watson Jr., in announcing the conference, said it will cover financing of industrial prospects, "since this appears to be the number one problem in industrial development at this time."

One panel discussion will feature such topics as the role of commercial banks, mortgage banks, investor builders and insurance companies in industrial financing.

Another will include discussions on the Small Business Administration, Economic Development Administration, industrial foundations and industrial revenue bonds.

Jim Harwell, executive director of Texas Industrial Commission, will review the conference and wrap it up after participation by industrial experts from both the public and private sector in the series of panel discussions.

In exactly two seconds, Mother will have to slam on the brakes.

When she does, you can just imagine what's going to happen to her innocent bystander here. And that picture is not so cute. That's why our safety experts urge every mother to make sure her children never stand up in the car. To make sure they're always seated and strapped in safely. But how can you tie a child down? Three ways. From infancy to toddler age, in a carry-crib. Secured with the car's seat belt. From toddler age to about 4 or 5, in a special car seat. Secured with the seat belt. From then on, until a seat belt fits your child snugly, with a pillow or two underneath the child. To fill the gap. How come your new car dealers are so concerned about your child? It stands to reason. We have kids of our own. And we know that children don't come equipped with built-in safety features.

He paused and then said slowly: "But I guess maybe it could have been worse. . . . You see," he explained, "there was a tank car of gasoline on the track near the compress, and it looked like any minute a spark or something would set it on fire. But when the Santa Fe passenger train came in, the engineer unhooked and went in there with the engine and hooked onto it and pulled it out. If that tank of gasoline had started to burn and had exploded. . . . He gestured with one hand expressively.

"What do you think caused the fire to get started?" I asked, remembering the Times - Picacone item.

"Nobody was sure," Briscoe said. "But, you see, when a bale comes out of the press, a lot of times it's pretty hot. And sometimes it is on fire. But it burns on the inside at first. . . . Maybe two or three bales of cotton that was on fire got stacked in the shed. And when the air hit them they began to burn. That's what we thought at the time, anyway."

So apparently the fire here was likely just a coincidence instead of part of a protest movement over the country as the Times - Picacone item suggested. Old records, however, show that cotton prices, after rising for a year or two following World War I, dropped sharply in 1920, causing a good deal of protest and agitation.

"I'd been working at the compress about two years when the fire happened," Briscoe reminisced. "Started in 1918 when I was pretty young. I was working as a hook boy - - you know, moving cotton bales around and doing other things."

"Didn't all of the cotton burn," he recalled. "There was a lot of bales of cotton on the ground - - no room for it in the sheds. That on the ground didn't burn - - That was a big cotton year, I remember. There was 65,000 bales made in Milam County that year. That's all they raised back then - - cotton and corn. Mostly cotton."

Trimmer in Frame-up
A trimmer is not always a barber or gardener. In carpentry, it's a beam or joist, to which a header is nailed in framing a stairway or chimney opening.

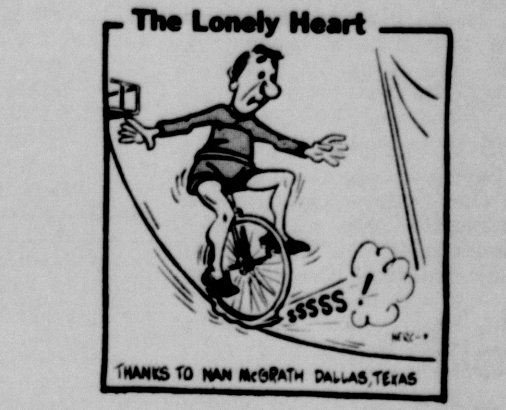

Nevada is mostly desert, but its 20 mountain ranges contain more than a half billion board feet of sawlog-size timber, enough to replace all homes in the state. Trees are mostly ponderosa pine and white fir.

Consider wood for that garden retaining wall, if warm good looks are wanted. Any western wood, if pressure treated, is fine.

Today Bud Briscoe still lives in the same house on Lewis Street where he watched the start of the big fire fifty years ago. He still works for the compress occasionally. In fact, he has worked for it over the years except from 1938 to 1946 when he worked for the Southern Pacific Railroad as a track repairman on the old SA&AP line between here and Giddings.

He is older now; his close clipped mustache is gray, but he looks younger than his 68 years. Besides his work at the compress, he raises a garden, "because a man has to keep busy."

"There's just two of us left that worked over there at the compress back there in 1920," he remarked. "A man that lives out in West Texas and me. Its getting to be a long time ago - - but that was a big fire."

Sales Tax Sharing Would Help Schools, Says Kubiak

Texas Association of School Boards and school administrators have endorsed a bill drafted by Rep. Dan Kubiak to use one percent of the sales tax money to be returned to the local schools on a per-pupil basis.

In his weekly newsletter, Rep. Kubiak said if the bill is passed, it will provide some relief to local school districts "who are already at the taxing limit trying to raise additional needed revenue. If you support this idea and feel that it is essential, I will appreciate your supporting this measure in your local areas."

Commenting on the problem of state expenditures, Rep. Kubiak noted that Nebraska cut taxes this year by nearly 25 percent, and said "we are corresponding with them to find ways to curb our own expenditures in the State of Texas."

must have a registered nurse on duty 24 hours a day, Rep. Kubiak said.

Some 140 small hospitals in Texas have been forced to close because of federal regulations. "There's no quarrel with the requirement," Kubiak said, "if we could find the nurses. The bill will allow HEW to waive the rule on a year - by - year basis if the hospital shows evidence of good faith in searching for personnel."

Chile Buys Polled Herefords

The world market for U. S. beef cattle look a large step toward the brighter side for this week with the announcement of the sale of 2,300 head of Polled Hereford cattle to be shipped by air to the Magallanes Province on the southern tip of Chile.

The purchase, amounting to more than a million dollars, was made by the Chilean Ministry of Agriculture, and the cattle will be a part of a continuing program for the development of a beef cattle industry in the south of Chile.

Under the same program, more than 10,000 U. S. Polled Herefords have been sold to Chile in the past three years.

The American Polled Hereford Association has been named to handle procurement of the cattle, and representatives of the APHA are now traveling in several states with Chile officials locating and purchasing commercial Polled Hereford heifers.

Weiner Ways

Weiners are a handy meat to have on hand. Kept in the freezer until needed, they thaw quickly and cook in minutes. Steamed in water or beer or just browned, they are a delicious and waste-free meat item. Score frankfurters and pose them atop hot sauerkraut for a hearty meal. Or for a winner, spoon canned chili over steamed weiners on fresh buns.

School News

Yoe High School students who expect to complete their secondary school requirements and to enter college in 1972 should register now to participate in the 1971-72 National Merit Scholarship Program. Principal John Chubb announced today.

The first step for all students who wish to enter the nationwide Merit Scholarship competition is to take the National Merit Scholarship Qualifying Test (NMQST). The test will be given only once during this school year. Our school is scheduled to give the NMQST at 9 a.m., Tuesday, February 16, 1971.

Taking the NMQST is also the first step for students who wish to participate in other scholarship programs administered by the National Merit Scholarship Corporation (NMSC). These programs include the National Achievement Scholarship Program for Outstanding Negro Students and Special Scholarship programs administered by NMSC for business and industrial firms.

NMQST participants pay a $1.25 test fee.

When his NMQST scores are reported, each participating student will receive a handbook to help him understand his scores and compare his test performance with that of other high school students across the country. The handbook, which contains information about making college choices and financing a college education, is furnished as a part of reporting the student's test results. Other interpretive materials are sent to the school.

The highest - scoring students in each state will be named Merit Program Semi-finalists, and, if they advance to Finalist standing, they will be eligible for Merit Scholarship consideration.

In addition to the National Merit Scholarships financed by NMSC, more than 450 business corporations, foundations, colleges, professional associations, unions, trusts, other organizations, and individuals offer scholarships through the Merit Program.

About 24,800 students have won Merit Scholarships in the fifteen programs to date. Approximately 2975 new winners of Merit Scholarships entered college this fall.
